Masses of Chinese Communists Fall In A Death Trap

Entry Being Made
In Pyongyang
As 2,000 Dead
From Air Attacks

TOKYO, Dec. 5—(AP)—Chinese Communist troops tonight were reported entering abandoned Pyongyang despite heavy air blows that left an estimated 2,000 enemy dead on the approaches to the desolate city.

The Fifth Air Force said masses of Chinese Communists were caught in a death trap earlier in the day by swift jet fighters on the Taedong river north of the one-time North Korean capital.

United Nations forces representing 53 non-Communist countries had driven the broken and fleeing Red Korean army from their Pyongyang capital Oct. 20.

Tuesday, before overwhelming pressure from vanguards of the 1,000,000-man Chinese Communist army assembled for Red Korea, the last U.N. troops pulled wearily out of Pyongyang in retreat to the south.

The Chinese "liberators" found the Red capital a flaming, smoking city, ravaged of installations and supplies that might be of military advantage.

The Red return was certain to be hailed throughout the Communist world.

Refugees Flee City
First reports of Pyongyang's return to Red control came from late arrivals among the Korean refugees swarming south out of the city. They said Chinese troops forded the icy Taedong river that cuts through a section of Pyongyang.

The one-time city of 300,000 population was something of an empty prize. Thousands of Koreans had fled in terror of the Red return.

Allied rear guards left the city earlier Tuesday after blasting the last bridges on the Taedong. A U.S. 25th division patrol scouted the outskirts later and reported it had seen no Chinese. But a smoke pall from burning Allied supplies and installations hung over the area.

Protected by a rear guard shield of British and South Korean troops south of Pyongyang, overwhelmed Allied troop columns beat a war-weary retreat toward the South Korean capital, Seoul.

Would they stand and defend against onrushing Chinese masses? Where?

Possibility of Stand
AP correspondent O. H. P. King reported from Seoul that a stand might be made thereabouts. He quoted a veteran military observer:

"Even in the face of a million Chinese Communists the Seoul-Inchon area can be held. Such heavy losses could be inflicted on the enemy by artillery and air that his hope of sweeping the peninsula would be completely smashed."

But correspondent King also quoted contrary opinion that said: "Let's face it. Someone outside Korea must come to our rescue if we are to stay."

The Chinese Reds swept across Pyongyang airfield before entering the city.

Only 13 days ago the Allied 8th army now in flight was driving northward within 50 miles of the Manchurian border.

Masses of Chinese Reds, striking as the shock troops of more than 1,000,000 General MacArthur said had been committed to the Korean war, turned the tide.

Retreat From Former Red Capital

Allied troops were destroying military installations and began evacuating former North Korean capital of Pyongyang (1), Dec. 3. In northeast (2) Chinese Communists were driving on industrial cities of Hamhung and Hungnam. In same area the U. S. Marines were battling to break out of a trap at Hagaru. Allied troops at Hyesanjin (3), on Yalu river opposite Manchuria, were ordered to stand with draw. It appeared likely that the Allies might eventually deploy in a defense perimeter around Seoul (4) and its port of Inchon. (AP Wirephoto)

Immediate Action by UN Is Sought

Insistent Chinese Intervention in Korea Cease

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 5—(AP)—Six countries, including the big three western powers, called upon the United Nations assembly today to act immediately to stop Communist China's intervention in Korea.

The demand was contained in a formal memorandum filed with U. N. Secretary-general Trygve Lie by the United States, Britain, France, Ecuador, Cuba and Norway. It followed yesterday's request that the Chinese intervention be put before the 60-nation assembly for debate.

The new document was both brief and mildly worded. It was submitted to conform to assembly rules which require an explanatory memorandum to accompany any request for taking up new business.

It will be a basis for discussion by the 14-nation steering committee which was called for 2:45 p. m. (EST) today. If the steering committee gives the go ahead, the full assembly will decide whether to give the question a full airing.

The memorandum made these main points:

1. Chinese Communist troops are fighting against U. N. forces in Korea.
2. An attempt was made in the (Please turn to Page 6, Column 3)

Manpower in China is Practically Inexhaustible

By DeWitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

There's an ugly sound to that cynical phrase "they are expendable" as applied to Red China's millions of fighting men.

To Western ears it is particularly ugly when used to designate the horde of Chinese who are pouring down on the comparatively small United Nations force in Korea. It means, of course, that these Chinese are available for cannon-fodder—and no questions asked.

General MacArthur said yesterday that more than 810,000 Red troops are massed in North Korea

A cold wave pushed across the frozen prairies of the Midwest today.

Temperatures dropped below the zero mark as it advanced. The Weather Bureau in Chicago, in a special bulletin, said the mass of "extremely cold Arctic air" was fanning out across the north central states.

It predicted temperatures of 10 to 20 below zero in Minnesota, zero to five above for Chicago and ten to 15 above for the Ohio river valley by tomorrow morning.

"Even lower readings are expected Thursday morning east of the Mississippi river," the forecaster said.

Zero to five below was predicted for Chicago Wednesday night.

Added Meters On Parking Are Approved

Bid Accepted on Construction of Sewer District 72

The Sedalia City Council met in regular session Monday night in the City Hall.

In business carried over from the last meeting, the Council approved installation of new parking meters on Fourth street from the middle of the 200 block to Kentucky avenue on both sides of the street, and on the east side of Kentucky from the alley between Fifth and Fourth streets to the alley between Fourth street and Third street.

Concerning an ordinance to more strongly enforce parking restriction in the "loading zones" in the city, Chester Wolfe, city counselor, informed the Council that all such areas must be fully described in an ordinance before the Council can take action on the matter. This duty was turned over to the City Engineer. Furthering his opinion Mr. Wolfe stated that the matter must be acted upon by the entire Council, not a committee.

Sewer Bid Accepted
The Howard Construction Company submitted the only bid for the construction of a district sewer in Sewer District No. 72. Its bid was within the Council's limit and was accepted by the city. The submitted bid was $9,639.55.

Under committee reports Emory Ellsworth, chairman of the Public Building and Grounds committee, said the rate on the city parking lot on east Fourth street will be decreased to 15 cents daily from the present toll of 25 cents. The fares will be collected by the operators of the lot.

Ellsworth also said he was investigating the feasibility of placing parking meters on the parking lot making it possible to place enough money in the meter to park as long as the car owner desired. Under that arrangement it would be possible to park between 30 and 40 cars on the lot and give a driver plenty of room to get in and out of the parking space.

Councilman Harry Moore of the Streets and Alleys committee reported the need for a new street sweeper. He made a motion that the city purchase a new sweeper and brush unit. The cost for the new purchase will total $2,272. The Council approved the lot.

Wolfe Gives Opinion
Pursuant to an inquiry made by Councilman Jim Reed in the last meeting concerning the legality of property holders doing their own plumbing work, the following letter was read from Counselor Wolfe:

Councilman James Reed, Sedalia, Missouri.
Dear Mr. Reed:
Re: Revision of Plumbing Ordinance for the City of Sedalia, Missouri.

At the last meeting of the City Council you requested your City Counselor to prepare an opinion concerning the advisability of revising the present ordinance governing the manner in which plumbing work may be done. It was my understanding that you contemplated a change whereby a home owner might do his own plumbing if this could be done.

In my opinion such an ordinance revision would be unconstitutional and contrary to Section 7560 of Missouri Revised Statutes 1939 which applies to "Cities Having Over Fifteen Thousand Inhabitants," and reads as follows:

Section 7560. Plumbers must have certificates—That any person now or hereafter engaging or working at the business of plumbing in cities or towns of fifteen thousands or more inhabitants in this state, either as master plumber

Only Lens of Noel Camera Was Retrieved

NORTHEAST FRONT, Korea, Dec. 5—(AP)—Associated Press photographer Frank Noel was reported to have been captured Saturday by his Chinese captors Saturday, reports from prisoners said today. An eyewitness reported today. An eyewitness reported Noel was not wounded.

More light on the capture of the veteran Pulitzer prize winning cameraman came today from two Marine MPs who were taken prisoner with Noel but later escaped. Their story, as related by Capt. Michael Carpraro, Marine public information officer, was flown out of the encircled town of Koto today.

"Wehn the Chinese hit our convoy, we decided to make a fight of it," Marine Pfc William R. Spain of Georgetown, Tex., told Capraro. "When Frank joined us, he was the coolest of the lot. In fact, I thought the old guy was a Marine Warrant officer. We were all mixed and in the darkness I didn't recognize the guy with the camera."

Cpl. Lawrence A. Plaisance of Portland, Ore., who escaped with Spain when their Chinese guard relaxed his vigil, told Capraro that Noel was marched away to the north by the Chinese.

Plaisance said Noel had not been wounded. He said Noel and other American prisoners were treated "very decently" by the Chinese.

Plaisance brought back the lens of Noel's camera. He said that was all that was left of it.

Ford Icy River On the Way to Pyongyang

Burning City is Abandoned by Forces of UN

U. S. EIGHT ARMY HEAD-QUARTERS, Korea, Dec. 5—(AP)—Refugees reported tonight Chinese Red forces forded the icy Taedong river and were entering burning Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital abandoned by retreating U. N. troops.

There was no immediate official confirmation of the reports. A patrol of the U. S. 25th division scouted the southern outskirts of the smoke-clouded city of 300,000 after the report was received an did not sight the enemy.

But the patrol reported vision was limited by the smoke pall. Pyongyang was captured by United Nations forces Oct. 20, in their northward thrust to bring an early end to the war. The tense city was abandoned without a fight today.

(This was a pooled dispatch field at 10:30 p. m. Korean time, 8:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time.) To the south, the retreating Eight Army occupied a new defense line without major contact with the Reds.

Rapid Changes Emerge
By Stan Swinton

TOKYO, Dec. 5—(AP)—The fate of two great American divisions—the First Marine and the Seventh Infantry—depends on a long, lonesome mountain head.

That's why the United Nations forces in northeast Korea appear to be in a more dangerous strategic situation than the retreating Eight Army in the northeast.

The situation changes so rapidly that there is a lot of guesswork in a strategic analysis, even by experts, but the picture on the northeast front is roughly this:

The odds are mounting so heavily against the 10th Corps—of which the Marine and Seventh divisions are components—that perhaps only another Dunkirk-style pull out can save it from annihilation.

Maj. Gen. Edward Almond's three American and two South Korean divisions are splashed over all of northeast Korea. Some elements are 300 air miles apart.

The U. S. Third division is committed west of Wonsan, blocking the passes through which the Chinese could push troop concentrations eastward into the coastal flatlands.

The ROK (Republic of Korea) capital division is far up the coast around Chongjin—300 air miles away to the northeast.

The ROK Third division has been northwest of the Capital division.

The Marines and the U. S. Seventh Army divisions are up on the Changjin reservoir, at Hagaru. They have one ground supply

Named Family Doctor of Year

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5—(AP)—Dr. Dean Sherwood Luce of Canton, Mass., was named family doctor of the year today by the American Medical Association's house of delegates.

The 74-year-old doctor, son of a Yankee sea captain, is a native of Holliston, Mass., and has practiced at Canton since 1905. To several Canton families he has delivered three generations of babies.

Dr. Luce was not here when the award was announced. Later he will get a gold medal denoting outstanding service as a family doctor.

His selection resulted from a national competition in which each county Medical Society made nominations and state nominee were chosen from the county lists. Trustees of the AMA reduced the state candidates to three, and the House of Delegates chose Dr. Luce, Dr. Jim Camp of Pecos, Tex., and Dr. William Strange of Logansport, Ind. were the other two candidates delegates considered.

A. B. Coddling, Formerly of Sedalia, Shot

Receives a Bullet Wound at Hands of Would-be Robber

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 5—(AP)—Almeron Burt Coddling, 51, former Sedalia, was seriously wounded Sunday afternoon during an attempted service station holdup at Tulsa, Okla. Coddling, (better known to his friends in Sedalia as "Boob"), was reported by hospital attendants today as being much improved from a stomach bullet wound suffered at the hands of a would-be service station robber.

Coddling, an oil company (Tide-water Associated) accountant, was shot while he and his 13-year-old son, Norman, were in the station to have their automobile serviced.

Police held two men they identified as Charles J. McKerren, 27, a former Tulsa living in Abilene, Tex., and Patrick Hilton, 36, also of Abilene. Charges against the pair depend on the outcome of Coddling's wound.

McKerren, who police said admitted the attempted holdup, was beaten and disarmed by Sylvester Sherman, 27-year-old Negro porter at the station. Hilton, officers said, apparently was asleep in McKerren's car in the station at the time.

Albert Hogue, attendant at the station on the city's southeast neighborhood, reported McKerren drove into the station and while his car was being serviced, drifted into the station's wash room. After loafing, and drinking in the station some time, McKerren went to the car and returned with a revolver, the attendant said. "This is a stickup," Hogue quoted McKerren. "Give me your money."

According to Hogue, the Texan ordered him, the Coddling's, another customer and Sherman into the station's tiny rest room, then told each to come out in turn for "a shakedown." McKerren was reported to have taken about $50

Would Return to Korea Later If Driven Out by Chinese Reds

By Arthur Gavshon

LONDON, Dec. 5—(AP)—A British informant said today President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee have determined that United Nations forces should return to Korea in the event Chinese Communists drive them out in a Korean Dunkerque.

The source said the President and Prime Minister had agreed that for the present, however, the United Nations should do everything possible to avoid being involved in a state of open war with Communist China.

The decision was taken during a 90-minute meeting at the White House yesterday, informants said. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, gave Attlee and his aides a firsthand account of the military situation in Korea at that meeting.

Bradley's assessment was reported to have taken into consideration all possibilities, including a United Nations withdrawal from Korea.

The American and British leaders were faced with a decision whether then the United Nations should write off Korea completely.

The unqualified decision was (Please turn to Page 9, Column 2)

Situation in a Precarious Stage In Korea His Report Asserts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP)—President Truman said today United Nations forces in Korea are fighting "against tremendous odds." But he declared that no matter what happens there the fight for freedom will go on.

His somber-toned report came amid growing talk in Congress and elsewhere that the U.N. military situation was begun to appear almost hopeless and may force a Dunkerque-type withdrawal by sea.

Mr. Truman took time out from a busy, almost-continual round of conferences with American military-diplomatic advisers, and with Prime Minister Attlee of Britain, to address the White House Conference of Children and Youth.

His prepared speech stressed (1) The precarious situation in Korea and the "grave risk" of a general war, and (2) The nature of the present crisis as only part of the long-range struggle "to uphold the values of peace and justice and freedom."

Beyond stressing the tremendous odds the U. N. forces face, Mr. Truman made no assessment of the Korean situation.

And again the talk of a possible evacuation of the troops there, some of the best informed officials are saying it is still too early to predict what will actually happen or that the U. N. forces will have to get out of Korea entirely.

Talk With Bradley
Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee reviewed the situation yesterday with Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the point chiefs of staff, in the first of their crisis talks. Bradley is reported to have told them that evacuation plans are ready if they have to be used.

In his address to the Conference on Children and Youth, the president said that the intervention of Chinese Communists in Korea had greatly changed the situation confronting this nation. Then, in a sentence interpreted by some officials as his first move to prepare the country for bad news—news of a military disaster in Korea—the president added:

"No matter how the immediate situation may develop, we must remember that the fighting in Korea is but one part of the tremendous struggle of our time—the struggle between freedom and Communist imperialism."

Mr. Truman and Attlee reached no agreements in their opening talk yesterday but diplomatic informants reported they are moving toward an agreement that western Europe is the place to offset Communist victories in the Far East.

As far as the present military situation is concerned, it is understood that the president and prime minister dealt with three alternatives and found themselves facing a choice between complete defeat in their initial analysis.

The idea of establishing and holding a line across the Korean peninsula appears almost if not entirely, hopeless.

There was still some belief on the part of American leaders, however, that it might be possible again as it was earlier this year to maintain a foothold on Korea. This would be justified if there was reason to expect a new buildup of U. N. forces capable of dealing with the Chinese Communist masses and so far there is no evidence such a buildup is planned.

The other possibility which looms bigger with each days news of new Chinese Communist successes on the battlefield is a complete military defeat for the U. N. forces.

In London, a British informant said Mr. Truman and Attlee have determined that United Nations forces should return to Korea in event the Chinese Communists drive them out at this time.

The situation as it appears here raised doubt, however, that the United Nations coalition would be able to return at any time in the predictable future.

Went Mountain Climbing 'Just For Ride;' Now He Has to Learn How to Climb Stairs

By Dale Rhoads
NEA Staff Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash.—(NEA)—David Harrah never expected to get to the top of Yerupaja mountain in the Peruvian Andes. "I just went along for the ride," he said.

He and another climber made it—the first to ever scale the 21,769-foot peak. But Harrah almost didn't get down alive. Now he's got to learn how to go up and down stairs again. Harrah's exploit cost him all his ten toes, but when he can walk, he hopes to go back to mountain climbing.

Harrah, a 21-year-old student at Stanford University, answered an ad this summer for volunteers to make an assault on Yerupaja, highest unscalped peak in the Western hemisphere.

The six-man party, led by George Bell, Cornell instructor, and James Maxwell, of Braintree, Mass., worked their way up the base of the mountain and built a base camp at 18,500 feet. Three of them dropped out. Harrah, Bell and Maxwell went on to a tiny ledge a few thousand feet below the summit.

After three attempts, Harrah and Maxwell went on alone, battling their way up the ridge to conquer the peak.

But the mountain wasn't ready to give in, even after they had made it. On the ticklish descent from the summit, they stopped for a minute in a "safe" place to take a picture. The snow cornice on which Harrah was standing slipped into a 2000-foot abyss. Harrah went plunging after it.

Maxwell saw him go, grabbed an ice ax and dug in. The nylon rope—less than half an inch thick—that tied them together jerked taut after Harrah had fallen 120 feet.

In the icy wind, Maxwell sweated as he waited to see if the thin nylon cord would hold. Then he slowly hauled Harrah, half-conscious back to the ridge.

They were only a thousand feet above their camp, but Harrah couldn't go down that night. His bruises were too painful. So he and Maxwell holed up out of the wind in an ice cave. Their only heat was a candle.

NEXT ENVOY TO SPAIN—
Stanton Griffiths, above, former U. S. ambassador to Argentina, will be named U. S. ambassador to Spain early next year, according to Washington reports. Griffiths will be the first U. S. ambassador to Madrid since Norman Armour retired in December, 1945. The post has been vacant in accordance with a recommendation of the UN General Assembly.

Seven days later, in a Lima, Peru, hospital, they began to feel the pain of that night. Their feet had been frozen solid. To save their lives, it was necessary to amputate all of Harrah's toes, and three of Maxwell's.

When Harrah got back to Seattle, his father had a wheel chair waiting for him. Harrah never touched it.

"I've got to get used to going up and down stairs," he said. "I've got to learn to use these," he added, pointing to his bandaged feet.

"As it is, the doctors say it will be two years before I can climb again." But after that, he expects to find more mountains to conquer.

Missouri Man Advises Folks Who Feel Bad

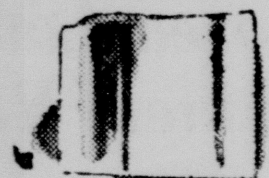

Carl Schaffrin, 217 Perry St., St. Charles, Mo., says there are some folks in this old world who feel good and there are other folks who feel bad. The folks who feel good he wants to congratulate, but for the folks who feel mighty bad he wants them to read what he has to say and then take a word of advice—take HADACOL if one suffers from a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron.

Here is what Mr. Schaffrin has to say about HADACOL since it overcame the effects of such deficiencies in his system: "I have been a shoe cutter for over 32 years—I now work for the Boyd Walsh Shoe Co. in St. Louis. For quite some time now I haven't had any appetite at all—seemed like I didn't have enough energy to do my work. I was tired all the time—and really didn't enjoy doing anything. It affected my work, too. Then I heard how other folks who took HADACOL had increased their appetite and seemed to have a limitless amount of energy. I tried HADACOL and it is amazing what a change it has made. Now I feel like eating everything on the table, my disposition is 100% better and my work—in fact, everything I do I now enjoy. For an entirely new outlook on life I recommend HADACOL."

Four Speakers On Last 1950 Sorosis Program

The last meeting of Sorosis for 1950 was held Monday afternoon at which time four Sedalia women told informally and entertainingly of their hobbies.

The first speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. George Chambers, who talked on buttons. The hobby of collecting buttons, she said, is an old one and started with the charm strings of our mothers and grandmothers. Today, she explained, buttons are mounted instead of being put on a string.

Mrs. Chambers was assisted by Miss Helen Bapple, who showed slides of outstanding buttons, as Mrs. Chambers told about them. Some of the most beautiful were eighteenth century buttons on which were the faces of beautiful girls of that era. These were porcelain buttons and in addition to the women were buttons with birds, flowers and insects, many of them handpainted, there were buttons of pearl, metal, milkglass, feathers and glass, one being a bee in its comb of blue glass.

History, too, is depicted through the buttons, with many historical scenes to be found on the buttons of that time. There were nursery rhymes on the buttons, a Chinese wedding and other oriental themes, but said Mrs. Chambers, her favorite of all was the Madonna and the child, so appropriate to this season of the year.

Mrs. Chambers told of the interest everywhere in button collections and of the national society of which Miss Bapple's aunt is the immediate past president.

Mrs. George Bichsel was the second speaker talking on "Old Furniture." Mrs. Bichsel, whose late husband was a jeweler, was asked to speak on old silver but she was not a collector of old silver and had only one piece, a very beautiful candelabra. She said that this was in the store room when she came to Sedalia and when she said she would like to have it her husband and his brother gave it to her.

"I never buy anything because it is old," said Mrs. Bichsel, "I buy because I have a place in my house for it and because I think it is pretty."

Her experiences in collecting old furniture has been fun, she said. Starting early, when you could get things around different places for almost nothing and having them restored, she has been able to collect some very rare and expensive things for a very small sum of money, she said, and everything in her home, even in her kitchen, has a story.

She told of two chairs which she brought, which came from an old tavern, and cost her all together $8.50, she found were identical to some in New York which sold for $100.00 apiece.

Displaying a table she said that four chairs, a sofa and the table were in the home of old Dr. Fuller brought to Sedalia in 1865 and she bought the table which has never been refinished. She told how she talk her husband into letting her buy the sofa over the telephone. She couldn't quite do the job, but she felt that she could win out when she could talk to him that night—she she called and asked the man selling the furniture to wait until after 7:00 o'clock that evening. She was informed Dr. Yancey had already bought the sofa for his wife.

Another table was purchased on Main street in Smithton and later she found that a table exactly like it was pictured in Good Housekeeping magazine and was 150 years old.

Mrs. Bichsel had many other interesting antiques but one of the most unusual and really beautiful was the lace lamp. The women of that day did a great deal of handwork and were unable to work in the evening because they had no lights except candles, and the flame flickered. So the lace lamp was invented, this one with cut glass base similar to a candlestick and a little glass globe that fit over the flame like the chimney of a kerosene lamp. Mrs. Bichsel found the lace lamp under a shelf in a antique shop and later when she sent off the globe, when one of hers was broken, to the Fostoria company they wrote for entire lamp and reproduced them by the hundreds. She also had a pair of the first electric lamps to come to Sedalia, which were purchased by the Bichsel's store at the time electricity first came to the town.

Mrs. A. H. Bratten was the third speaker and told many interesting experiences in stamp collecting. She and her husband had never thought of stamps only as something to carry their letters and when one day he called her and asked her if they had any stamps at home she thought he wanted to mail something. He had a friend who was a stamp collector and suddenly he decided to be a stamp collector, too.

Stamp collectors are the largest group of collectors in the world, she said, and told of the interest in collecting that had even become a business with some.

There are different ways of collecting stamps and mounting them she said. There are pre-cancelled stamps which bear the name of the town and Sedalia has six types of pre-cancelled stamps. From these many interesting collections may be made, Mrs. Bratten said. There may be names of towns representing other countries, Indian reservations, Biblical collections, musical collections, resort collections, color collections, movie or radio, American history, all from the names of the towns or cities in the United States.

Collections of stamps may be of foreign stamps, or many different types of stamps and all collections are valuable, some stamps often selling for thousands of dollars she said.

The first stamp collection, Mrs. Bratten said, belonged to a child. Mrs. E. F. Yancey, the last speaker, displayed her collection of bells and said that the nice thing about collecting anything was that when your friends saw anything you were collecting they thought of you—and that was how she had so many bells.

In telling of the bells Mrs. Yancey said that they played a great part in people's lives for they were used for so many different purposes. There are church bells, school bells, cow bells, sheep bells, camel bells, elephant bells, engine bells, turkey bells, bells with melody—bells for every conceivable purpose—all doing a job.

Mrs. Yancey told of the engine bell that was given her by the M. K. T. in appreciation of Dr. Yancey's service to the company and she said, she had it on a high pole in her yard. In the night often the bell would ring so she had the rope taken off, but still the bell would ring and she wondered how the neighborhood boys managed. One day a mother of one of the boys told her how they climbed up the pole and rang it.

One of her bells was so tiny that she could hardly hear the tinkle of it she said, but she put it in the bird cage and the little bird was delighted with the tinkling sound. He would ring the bell and sing as loud as he could.

Mrs. Yancey also had some sleighbells and told of how a mare

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Attlee Under Great Pressure To Pull Out of Korea

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright 1950 By The Bell Syndicate Inc.)

WASHINGTON.—It was partly a fluke that led to the Attlee-Truman conversation—one of the most important conferences since Potsdam. Regardless of the accidental inception, however, diplomats agree that the conversation has long been needed to bring greater synchronization of traditional British-American friendship.

The fluke was the President's off-the-cuff statement that we were considering dropping the atomic bomb and the inference that General MacArthur had been given a free hand as to when we should drop it.

This statement, made at a morning White House press conference, hit the British House of Commons late in the afternoon and left British Labor leaders gasping. They have had increasing misgivings about MacArthur, and were fully aware of the manner in which he had maneuvered around State Department proposals to keep U.N. armies away from the Chinese dams and the Manchurian border.

British Labor leaders did not then know that the President had made his atom-bomb statement in reply to oral newspaper queries and that it was not a carefully considered statement. Finally, they did not know that the President was in the process of issuing a clarifying statement—which came three hours later.

British Labor Rebels

By accident, it happened that the Truman A-bomb statement hit the House of Commons during a major foreign policy debate, with 63 Labor members led by Tom Driberg and Ian Mikardo, of Labor's national executive body, proposing high level conferences between the east and west before taking any further decisions on Korea.

Simultaneously came a speech by Anthony Eden demanding conferences between London and Washington, plus a London Daily Mail editorial goading Attlee with the taunt that Churchill would have been half-way across the Atlantic were he prime minister.

It was in this atmosphere of extreme criticism from both Conservatives and Labor that Prime Minister Attlee was shown the first Truman statement indicating that the dropping of the A-bomb was up to MacArthur. At this, about 100 Conservative members of Parliament left the chamber and signed a petition to Churchill stating that if the United States dropped the bomb Britain should pull out of Korea.

These are some of the factors behind Attlee's trip which he wanted to put before Truman.

NOTE—Three hours after the first Truman statement on the A-bomb, came a clarifying White House statement that under the law only the President can authorize use of the atomic bomb and that no such authorization had been given to MacArthur.

Coffee and Defense

It may seem a long way between a coffee investigation staged by a Senator from Iowa and this country's preparedness for war; yet there's a connection just the same.

The Senate investigation, staged by silver-crested, likeable Guy Gillette of Iowa, delved into increased coffee prices and speculation. Insofar as it dealt with coffee manipulation by the big chain grocery stores and the New York commodity market, the probe was justified. However, when it blamed Latin American coffee growers for price increases, it was like blaming Iowa corn farmers for the increased price of corn.

Thus the injustice of Gillette's probe, which made headlines in Latin America, was the biggest break the Communists ever had south of the Rio Grande. It also turned millions of hitherto friendly Latinos, very sour indeed. Because Latin American coffee growers, like the farmer of Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, had suffered extremely lean years prior to the war. And the chief reason for increased coffee prices was identical with the reason for the increased price of American meat, corn, wheat and cotton—namely, that the world is consuming more.

Anyway, the State Department, aghast at the harm done our good neighbor policy by the Gillette coffee probe, placed all the facts before the Senate committee. Forthright Assistant Secretary Edward Miller warned that Gillette was playing into Communist hands, while farsighted Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico did his best to put the quietus on his colleague from Iowa.

We Need Latin America

But Gillette was stubborn. He had the support of "Cotton Elmer" Thomas of Oklahoma, chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee and he stood pat. What Gillette didn't figure on, however, was that Washington Merry-Go-Round exposures of Thomas's speculation in cotton, lard and eggs would defeat him at the polls.

Now that Thomas has been defeated, Senator Gillette is without a friendly committee chairman, and new chairman Ellender of Louisiana plans to abolish the coffee-probe committee.

However, here is the unpleasant pay-off. The effect of the furore Gillette stirred up in Latin America is now coming back to slap us in the face, following the bad news from Korea and Indo-China.

Desperately short of manganese, we have turned to Brazil, which has the biggest manganese deposits in the Americas. But Brazil also happens to be the biggest coffee grower and is still smarting from the unfair accusations of the Gillette committee. Though she is now helping us out on manganese, it is not with the same enthusiasm as in the last war.

Meanwhile, manganese is getting so short that refrigerators, automobiles, other civilian products are almost certain to be curtailed because of dwindling steel.

Other strategic materials are also involved—materials which Latin America has and which we are going to need vitally in case of all-out war. All of which is why the American people—instead of throwing brickbats, as did Senator Gillette—need to get back to working at the good neighbor policy.

Truman's Defeated Friend

President Truman did some blunt talking to congressional leaders about "unfinished business" when the special session opened, but he waxed a little sentimental about the election defeat of his Senate leader, Scott Lucas of Illinois.

"I'm terribly sorry, Scott," said Truman. "What are you planning to do?"

"I don't know yet," replied Lucas. "I intend to take a rest after the special session, but have no plans beyond that."

"Well, before you do anything, be sure to talk to me. I have some things in mind for you."

NOTE—The President didn't specify what jobs he was considering for Lucas. However, Lucas, together with Myers of Pennsylvania and Tydings of Maryland, have all indicated they will not take government jobs—though this is a time when experienced men in government are desperately needed.

We Could Use Some More Real Liberals Like Douglas

By Bruce Biossat

Sen. Poul Douglas, Illinois Democrat, is a man who could well be studied by people who declare themselves liberals. He's a real one.

In too many circles today, the liberal is being defined as a man who wants the federal government to solve the bulk of our major problems and doesn't think there ought to be any criticism of this proposition.

Thus Oscar Ewing is a "liberal" because he believes in President Truman's sweeping national health program and labels its opponents as "stupid." Thus Senator Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, is a "liberal" because he wants to repeal Taft-Hartley and can see no virtue in mere amendment.

The truth is that the liberal cause never was intended to embrace such pat thinking or such intolerance of different opinions. And the liberal label is not synonymous with the badge of the Democratic Party or any other.

There are genuine liberals in both major parties. To suggest that those in the GOP are really misplaced Democrats is again to misunderstand liberalism. President Truman was talking beside the point when he called Governors Warren of California and Duff of Pennsylvania "good Democrats."

Douglas happens to be a good Democrat, but first of all he's a liberal. Why? Because he works for the general public interest no matter where it leads him. One day he may feel compelled to assault the big corporations, the next day big labor.

Recently, for instance, he bluntly told the CIO convention that workmen wouldn't accept labor's "hand-me-down" opinions on who to vote for. He also advised union officials to work for Taft-Hartley amendment rather than outright repeal.

This doesn't make Douglas "anti-labor." It would be hard to find a lawmaker with a better lifelong labor record than he. It just means that he speaks out when he thinks labor is working against its own and the public welfare. He declines to subscribe to the idea that labor alone of all groups can do no wrong.

When Douglas campaigns in the Senate for economy—an unpopular sport with the Humphrey-type liberals—he doesn't fire a blunderbuss. He picks off carefully selected targets like a sharpshooter. He's not concerned with making a grandstand play but with accomplishing public good.

Douglas wants to see a health program adopted, too, but strangely enough it's a different one from Mr. Truman's. On each issue he faces, he tries to figure out what's best for the country as a whole. He doesn't follow an automatic party line and damn everyone who disagrees with him.

He keeps in mind, however, that it's important not only to promote the general welfare but to preserve the widest possible area of individual freedom. He doesn't assume that a federal solution to a problem contains a sure-fire guarantee of liberty. He looks at the alternatives.

There aren't too many real liberals like Douglas in public office. We should all be thankful for them, even when we disagree with them. And we should try earnestly to separate them from the pseudo-liberals—whose ideas and policies are every bit as rigid as the reactionaries they spend so much time lambasting.

Get in on This 'Paper Airlift'

A New York clergyman, a former Air Force chaplain, has organized a Christmas card "airlift" to Korea.

Thus far Rev. William J. Chase (St. James Episcopal Church) and his parishioners have sent nearly 8000 cards overseas to wounded men in hospitals and soldiers in the field. Some are for G.I.'s to return to their friends and families at home.

The project was undertaken only after Col. John Linsley, staff chaplain of the Far East Air Forces, assured the sponsors the cards were needed and would be distributed by chaplains.

Said one out there: "Korea is very far away from home, and Christmas cards are a way of letting the boys know they haven't been forgotten."

The Reverend Chase's paper airlift to Korea ought to be matched in every corner of America.

THE AIM OF THE CHRISTIAN DISCIPLINE

In the remaining days we have left for our meditations we must gather up the strands we have been weaving. Perhaps the verse that would sum up what we have been saying is this one: "Whereas the aim of the Christian discipline is the love that springs from a pure heart, from a good conscience, and from a sincere faith." (I Timothy 1:5 Moffatt.)

The Christian discipline: The Christian way is a discipline and not merely a doctrine. Doctrine that does not discipline is dead. Christianity is therefore not merely something that you believe, but something that you believe in enough to act upon. Your deed is your creed—the thing you believe in enough to put into practice. You do not believe in what you do not practice. Theory and practice are one. Your theory is your practice.

The future of the world is in the hands of disciplined people. The undisciplined waste their energies with themselves and their own tangles. But the statement that the future of the world is in the hands of the disciplined needs to be corrected by the addition: The future of the world is in the hands of those who are disciplined to the highest. If one is disciplined to less than the highest, then the discipline will exhaust itself—it isn't backed by the ultimate. The Christian is disciplined to what? The preceding verse tells us—"the divine order which belongs to faith." The divine order is the Divine Order—the Kingdom of God. That Divine Order was embodied in the Divine Person—Jesus Christ. We are, therefore, disciplined by a Person who embodies an Order, an embodiment which makes our discipline at once personal and at once social—personal in that it is related to a Person, and social in that it is related to the embodied Kingdom, the Christian is bound to outthink, to outlive, to outdo, because the Kingdom out-experiences every other way of life. We can give ourselves without question to the Christian discipline!

O God, this discipline to which I have given myself is it! Help me now to be disciplined in this way with no reservations and with no hesitations. May I fling every doubt and fear and hesitation to the winds. As the ancient Hebrew said: "I take the yoke of the Kingdom." I know I shall find that yoke easy, for it is my life! Amen.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

Q. Does an officer of the inactive reserve have a chance of being deferred if he served for five years in the Army and was a prisoner of war for 26 months? Can an inactive reserve officer resign his commission?

A. Not because you were a P.O.W. No, not at the present time.

Q. Can the draft board put you in class 4-F without giving you a physical exam?

A. Yes, if you have some obvious physical defect like a missing leg.

Q. Is a girl who will be 19 soon and who didn't have the chance to go to high school eligible for service in one of women's corps?

A. The Army permits girls in who have the "equivalent" of a high school education. You'd have to pass tests to prove it. But you can't get in the Air Force or Navy women's services without a high school diploma.

Q. My son enlisted in the service last August. I have two daughters whom I must support and only a small pension from the railroad. Am I eligible for an allotment?

A. Yes, if your son contributed to more than one-half of your support.

Q. Our son is 19 and mentally backward. He couldn't finish school and can't hold a job. Is there a chance that he might be drafted?

A. Not much. But it will depend on his ability to pass the Army's mental exam.

Q. My son has had the government send me a monthly allotment out of his pay. But it isn't enough to keep me going. Can I have it increased?

A. No.

Lack of Sunshine May Lead To Rickets And Other Diseases

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Millions of people live in climates which provide very little sunshine for several months of the year. They get by without much sun, but there are reasons for thinking that most of them do not feel quite as well as other people and that they have less resistance to some infections at sunless times of the year.

I am talking about grownups mainly. Children are in a worse fix. Sunlight on the skin results in the manufacture of Vitamin D and this vitamin is necessary to prevent soft bones (rickets) in children.

During the dark days, therefore, children need extra rations of Vitamin D which is now so often provided in cod liver oil or other fish oils.

Some fortunate ones take winter vacations in climates where they can get a good dose of sunshine right when they need it most. But this is impossible most of the time.

There is another possibility for the person who believes his or her health will be better with "sunshine." This is the use of the ultra violet lamp, sometimes called sun lamp. These lamps provide rays which are much like those of the sun.

The effect of the rays from an ultra violet lamp on the normal skin is much like that of the sun. If the skin is exposed too long to

Double Fused

THE STORY: Sgt. Eddie Engstrom's squad is wiped out by a bomb, and the men realize they are dead when they find themselves back home in Westwaygo. So far only one living creature can see them—Eddie's dog Duke.

XIV

WHEN they left Margie Lou's house Eddie allowed himself to be persuaded to go downtown. Joe pretended to want to see the sights which had been so highly touted to him. Probably he thought it might take Eddie's mind off from his stymied love affair. Joe didn't believe there was any possible answer to that problem. Eddie didn't either, that's why he was so miserable.

There were lots of soldiers and sailors in town. Most of them looked terribly young. That was because they had not yet come in to contact with the branding irons of battle which sear the lines of maturity across the faces of boys.

Eddie and Joe encountered an occasional Army or Navy officer. From force of habit they saluted but none of them returned the courtesy. After they had almost decided to stop doing it, a Marine second lieutenant's arm went up in a snappy response. Then he said:

"Hey, you fellas, wait a minute."

Eddie and Joe turned and the lieutenant came back to them.

"I want to ask you a question, sergeant," the young officer said. "I've walked almost the entire length of Main Street and met 50 enlisted men. You two are the only ones who have saluted. Isn't there any discipline around here?"

Eddie and Joe looked at each other. Joe nodded in reply to Eddie's unspoken question.

"May I ask the lieutenant a question?"

"Certainly, sergeant. Go ahead."

"Does the lieutenant know where he is, in what city, I mean?"

"Yes. This is Westwaygo, Mich. I was born here."

"Right. And does the lieutenant remember where he was earlier in the day?"

"I was with an amphibious force attacking the Japanese position—good heavens, how did I get here?"

"The same way we did. We're casualties, sir."

The Marine officer was dazed. "I saw that Jap coming at me with a bayonet and I thought I got him with my carbine. It must have been the other way around."

The officer responded absently to their parting salutes.

When they came to the corner they turned left to cross the street. But the traffic signal was against them so the two soldiers from force of ancient habit waited. They looked back. The lieutenant was still standing right where they had left him. Apparently he was having considerable trouble adjusting himself to the new idea. He didn't even notice when a woman pushed a baby carriage right through him.

ACROSS the street was Alf's Place. It was there that Eddie had worn dozens of tips off from his own private cue which was still racked alongside of his favorite pool table. He knew some of the oldsters who were deeply engrossed in a game of Kelly just as they had been when he had gone away. He half expected them to invite him to get his cue.

A middle-aged bald-headed man with a sagging belt line was telling a young soldier why he himself was not in uniform. "Why, when I was in the Argonne, I captured a German patrol single-handed. Sergeant York was the only Yank who turned in more Krauts to the prisoner detail than I did."

"Windy, ain't he?" said Eddie. "One thing I'm never going to be when this scrap is over—a veteran."

Eddie just then caught a full-face glimpse of a short, swarthy soldier who stood alone nearby.

"Look, Joe," he said. "See that guy in uniform over there. He's a Jap. What's he doing here?"

"Wearing an American outfit!" Joe was equally startled and his voice rose above the hum of all the other conversation.

The soldier whom they were discussing heard them. "What other uniform could I wear?"

Eddie noticed that he had a sergeant's stripes on his sleeve and the Army Air Corps insignia on his shoulder. More than that there was a rainbow of campaign ribbons on his chest.

"We oughta tear it off," said Eddie harshly.

THE stranger smiled bitterly but unafraid. "Two of you against one of me? Is that the American idea of a fair fight?"

"When did you so-and-so's ever fight fair? But bring on one of your friends—or a dozen of 'em. We don't care."

"I am so sorry, please, as Mr. Moto used to say, but I have no friends."

Joe got the idea sooner than Eddie. "He's an American, Eddie. Born in the United States the same as you and I."

The Jap favored Joe with his cynical smile. "Correct, soldier, and regular Army since '39. What are you going to do about it? What," he added with a note of despair in his voice, "is anybody going to do about it? It was my Charlie in a bomber shot down over Berlin. What could I have done if I had lived until after the war—explain to everybody I met that I was born with the Stars and Stripes in one hand and knew the Constitution of the United States better than they did? Nuts."

"Sorry, sergeant," said Eddie, "I don't know what to say."

"Nobody does. I'll be going so you won't have to think about it." He turned away. "See you in Valhalla."

He went through the door without opening it.

Let's Stop Kidding Ourselves
About Problems of Middle Age

Bette Davis, the screen star, who is now in that decade during which life is supposed to begin, says she thinks that movie actors and actresses approaching middle-age ought to act their ages on the screen.

If they should take her advice it might be a good influence on the middle-aged of the country. We talk a lot about our teen-age problem, but one of our biggest quarters at Cleveland, Ohio. The announcement came from the assistant postmaster general.

W. H. Howard, for thirteen years a salesman for the Bell Grocery company, resigned to devote his time to farming interests.

Dan A. Fultz, who for the past three months has been selling clothing in the west, arrived home for the winter months.

H. B. Shain, circuit judge-elect, and George H. Scruton, editor of the Democrat-Sentinel, are at Excelsior Springs for a few days' sojourn.

Attorney Lee Montgomery left for Kansas City where he has a case before the Kansas City court of appeals.

One hundred and fifty men employed at the M. K. and T. railway shops, who were laid off several days ago on account of lack of material to arrive, resumed work.

headaches today is our middle-aged problem.

The middle-aged just don't want to be middle-aged and all too often refuse to accept the fact that their gay, gay youth is behind them.

You see the middle-aged problem at country club dances where parents of teen-agers are trying to drink enough, flirt enough, and make enough noise to convince themselves they are still young.

Can't Learn That Youth Is Behind Them

You see the middle-aged problem in the thousands of homes that are broken each year because Papa, kidding himself that he is still too young to be leading the not-too-exciting life of a settled husband and father, decides to have a little fling on the side.

Or because Mama thinks that her marriage isn't as rewarding as she thought it would be and decides to strike out on her own while she is still young enough to start over. She isn't young enough to start over, but she doesn't find that out until too late.

And you see the middle-aged problem among the restless couples who are so afraid of "settling down" that they turn their lives into a social "rat race" that never gives them time for their homes or their children.

It's not just the middle-aged movie stars who like to play at being younger than they are. It's a growing cancer among the middle-aged today.

"How about that other Santa Claus down on the corner with the bell—is he some relative of yours?"

Hal Boyle COLUMN

By Saul Pett
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK—(AP)—The rise and fall of Peter Foy occurs eight times a week.

After all, you can't expect stability in a career devoted to flying without an airplane.

Foy, it must be hurriedly explained before the suspense snaps your nerves, is the young, red-faced Britisher who makes people fly through the air in the hit Broadway revival, "Peter Pan."

Foy also set up the complicated apparatus for flying scenes in two other Broadway shows, "Peep Show" and "Out of This World." But "Peter Pan" is his biggest operation and he directs it personally. He has also arranged television "flights."

He works behind the scenery and can't see the actors. "I fly blind," is the way he puts it.

Foy has four wires, one each for Jean Arthur, who is Peter Pan, and for the child actors playing Wendy, Michael and John. The performers wear a leather harness hidden under their costumes. Just before going up on a mission, their harness catches a hook attached to a wire which runs through a complicated system of counter-weights and pulleys all leading backstage to a rope on the end of which is Foy.

In landing, the problem is to land the flying actor gently. Thus, Foy lets the rope run up through his hands. Suddenly he grabs it again and rides us in the air with the rope until his weight counter-balances the actor who is landing.

When he wants to achieve a sudden takeoff, he stands on top of a 12-foot ladder and jumps at the rope. He does this in one scene where he has to yank both Michael and the John abruptly into the air on one wire. This operation has worked smoothly in the New York production, but once in London, Foy climbed down with a bang, offending and bruising the bottom of his spine.

What he didn't know when he jumped was that Michael wasn't on the stage. Instead of having 140 pounds on the other end of his rope, Foy had only 80. He weighs 150.

Has he ever dropped any actors?

"Not yet," said the 24-year "flight supervisor"—the title they give to Foy. "I've been at this four years, here and in England, and never lost a passenger."

And saying this, he knocked wood.

After several months of stage flying, a flight supervisor's hands grow very sensitive to changes in weight.

"After a week-end," Foy said, "I almost always notice that Miss Arthur has gained a pound or two. But we knock it off of her during the week."

Blaze Knocked Out Telephones

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5—(AP)—If an irate taxpayer wanted to complain about something to the state Monday, he'd have to go to the capitol and do it by person.

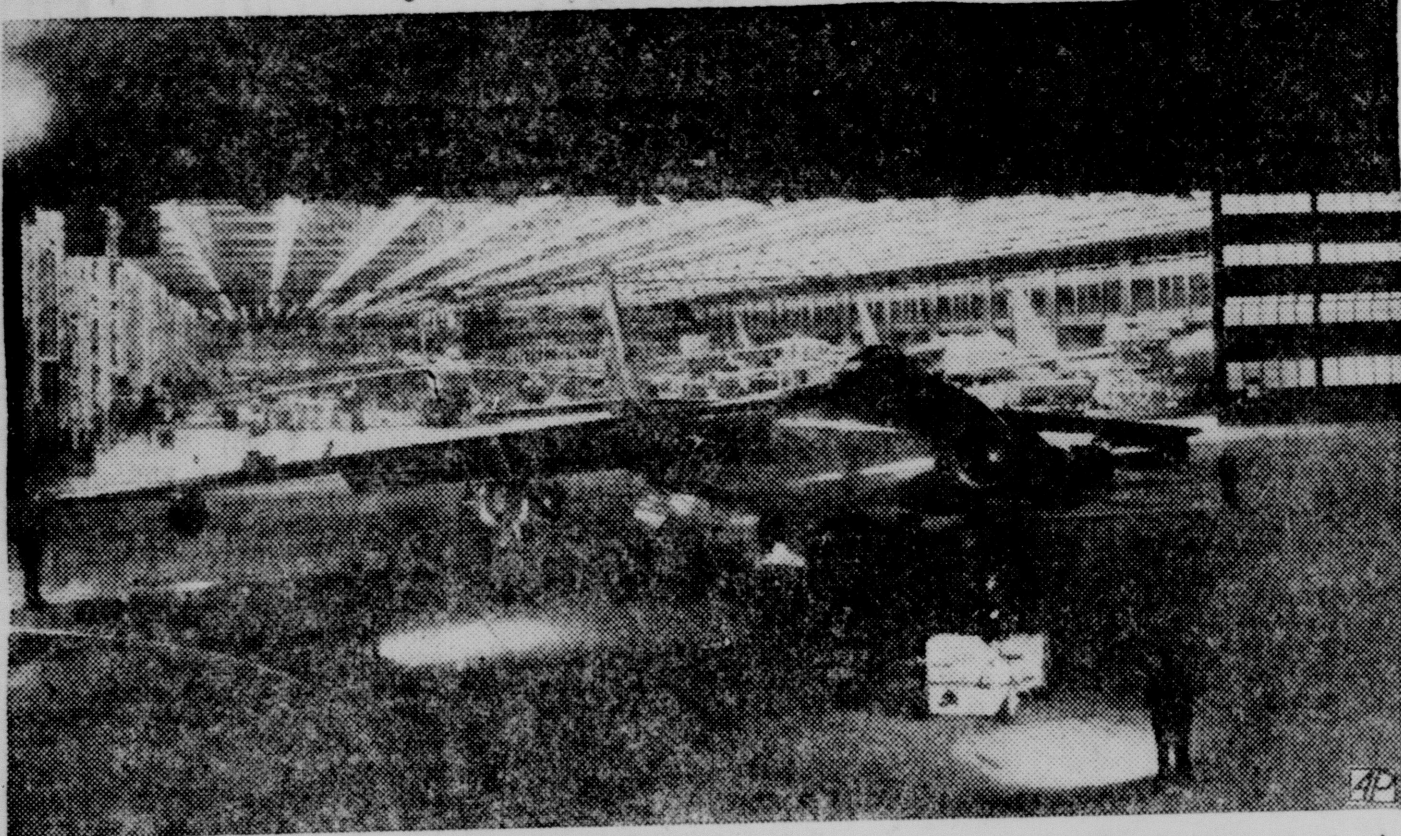

There wasn't a telephone working in the entire building, not even in the Governor's office.

The capitol phones were connected by a big cable destroyed in a downtown fire early Sunday. New cable was trucked here from St. Louis but the capitol City Telephone Company said it might be several days before all the disrupted phones are back in service.

Even in parts of town where telephones were working, some of the customers had trouble getting used to the new dial system which started operating yesterday.

All the old numbers were discarded when the old "number please" system ended. Every call today meant looking up a number

Rep. Cruce Escapes Death In Jeff City

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5—(AP)—Rep. W. D. Cruce of Eldorado Springs, Republican floor leader in the Missouri House of Representatives, narrowly escaped death here Monday.

He jumped just in time to avoid being hit by a falling steel light pole on a Jefferson City street corner. The brakes of a car parked on a filling station driveway failed to hold and the car snapped the heavy pole off at the base.

Cruce was shaken by the experience but went on to attend a meeting of the Republican state committee.

"I guess my guardian angel was looking after me," he said.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

C. I. Allen to 'Vets' Hospital

Calvin Q. Allen, 2400 South Ohio avenue, was taken by the Gillespie ambulance to the Veterans hospital at Wadsworth, Kansas, early today suffering from either a back or pelvic injury, received in an accident just north of the Sunset cemetery at Warrensburg on Highway 50, early today.

According to State Trooper Pete Stohr, Allen and some friends had borrowed a 1941 Ford coupe of Raymond I. Taylor, 1415 East Seventh street, to take a ride. He said the coupe was off in a ditch near Warrensburg and the occupants were outside of the car when he arrived.

Later in the night Allen, after returning to Sedalia summoned Dr. H. O. Wilbur who made an examination. After checking him found Allen to be suffering from an injury to the lower part of the back or possible pelvic hurts.

Inasmuch as he desired to go to a government hospital no x-ray pictures were taken and Allen sent on to Wadsworth.

The Ford car was badly wrecked according to the State Patrol.

"Under these circumstances, the delegations of Cuba, France, Ecuador, Norway, United Kingdom and the United States believe that the assembly should not consider immediately, as an important and urgent question, the intervention of the central people's government of the people's republic of China in Korea, with a view to making appropriate recommendations.

Mayor Cautions Spending
Mayor Studer cautioned the Council to watch expenditures for the rest of the year. The mayor continued that he believed money spent thus far has been wisely invested, but care must be exercised for the remainder of the month.

The expected report on the progress made on installation of street light to be given by a representative from the Missouri Public Service Company was not completed. The report is scheduled for the next meeting.

In this light Councilman Ellisworth made a motion that the report also include an explanation for the low gas pressure reported prevalent in certain sections of the city. The mayor said he would ask for such a report.

The meeting closed with Dewey Gwinn publicly thanking the mayor and Council for the quick action taken in securing sewer easements in northeast Sedalia. Mr. Gwinn spoke in behalf of the residents of that area.

Injured in Cab Truck Collision

Mrs. Mary Young, 55, wife of G. W. Young, 723 East Fifth street, was painfully but not believed seriously injured about 10:30 o'clock this morning when a taxicab she was riding in was in collision with a truck at Fourth street and Marvin avenue.

The taxicab, a Chevrolet sedan, was driven by Gene Gates, 1314 South Kentucky avenue, and was going north on Marvin while the Dodge pickup truck, driven by L. C. Thomas, 812 East Fifth street, was headed west on Fourth street, when the two vehicles collided.

The taxicab is owned by the Yellow Cab Co., while the truck is owned by the Missouri Public Service Co. Both drivers were booked at police headquarters and released on $50.00 signed bonds to appear in police court at a date to be set next week.

Mrs. Young was taken to the Bothwell hospital in the McLaughlin ambulance where Dr. C. Gordon Stauffer rendered medical treatment and had X-ray pictures taken to determine if there were any broken bones. She suffered a severe laceration on the right side of her head in which several stitches had to be taken to close the wound.

Mrs. Young was en route to the Union Savings Bank to obtain her Christmas savings check when the accident occurred.

from the four men.

Then, said Hogue, the man scooped about $85 from the cash register.

Sherman was ordered out of the rest room. He quoted McKerran as telling him, "Come out, I'm going to kill you."

The porter stepped out cautiously, and lunged for McKerran's armed hand. A shot was fired wild. Coddling and the other customer leaped to Sherman's aid.

Several other shots were fired, one felling Coddling.

Sherman seized a full soft drink bottle and slammed it repeatedly against McKerran's head. In the meantime, young Coddling crawled through the rest room window, ran to a residence and called police. His father was sped to a hospital.

After being treated for his battered head, McKerran was quoted by officers as saying he "just got a crazy notion to hold up the place."

Police credited the slightly-built Sherman with saving several lives.

The little Negro admitted he was "scared to death."

"I figure if he kills me," explained Sherman, "he'll kill others." That's why I jumped him. Here? Naw, I just reason if I'm gonna die, I'll die fighting."

A. B. Coddling, wounded in a service station attempted holdup Sunday, is the son of the late Elroy E. Coddling and May B. Coddling. His father was postmaster in Sedalia for several years. He is a brother of Nelson M. Coddling, former Sedalian.

Coddling was reared and educated in Sedalia and graduated from the old Sedalia high school in the class of 1916.

He has been residing in Oklahoma for the past thirty years.

Arkansas Town to Get Famed Guns of Outlaws

AP Newsfeatures

BERRYVILLE, Ark.—Six shooters once packed by such noted outlaws as Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Henry Starr and Pretty Boy Floyd are included in a privately-owned gun collection that has been willed to this county seat town in the Ozarks.

The display, reputed to be one of the world's largest, belongs to a keen-eyed, 87-year-old man with a white goatee—Col. Charles Burton Sanders. The Texas-born, internationally-known pistol shot spent many years and a considerable amount of money collecting the firearms.

Other items in the collection of 2,000 guns are dueling pistols that belonged to European royalty, sidearms carried by famous scouts, frontier marshals of a by-gone era and other widely known personalities. In addition, the exhibit includes the knife with which "Buffalo Bill" is said to have killed Chief Yellow Hand in a hand-to-hand encounter, curios and relics from many parts of the world and his pistol championship trophies.

Saunders says he has documented evidence to support the history of each item in the collection.

"I've paid as high as $1,500 for a gun that had no historical background, yet was a rare model. However, I wouldn't give $1.50 for one with a historical background that couldn't be proved to my satisfaction," he said.

He pointed out a wooden gun in the display as an example and said: "I paid $50 for this gun, which was carved from a toilet seat and used by two convicts in their escape from the death house at the Arkansas penitentiary, but it wouldn't be anything but a child's toy if I couldn't prove the story."

Estimates of the value of the collection range upward from $250,000.

Some of the items are virtually priceless. One is one of the first pistols ever manufactured, Saunders said. It was made in China, an awkward, all-metal weapon fired by a lever with a bit of mercury placed in an opening at the top of the barrel.

Other shooting irons in the collection includes weapons once owned by Buffalo Bill, Annie Oakley, Pancho Villa, Frank James, Belle Starr, Wild Bill Hickock, Judge Roy Bean, Three Fingered Jack, Bill Doolin, Wesley Hardin and Cole Younger—many of them prominent figures in the days when the six-gun was the law of the west.

The collection will be inherited by the city of Berryville after Saunders' death. He also has deeded a plot of ground for a museum and made provisions for its maintenance.

At present, the collection is housed in Saunders' home.

Double-Main Event Wednesday Night

The last wrestling show of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion program for 1950 will be held Wednesday night, December 6, at the National Guard Armory with a double-main event. The card this week promises one to be filled with excitement, especially in the "neighborhood row" event.

"Bill" McIntyre, Otterville, is slated against Ray Eckert of California, in the "neighborhood row" event. McIntyre somewhat younger than Eckert but fresh from Texas where he made an excellent record on the circuit down south is expected to take care of himself against the "rowdy" from California.

He is a brother of Don McIntyre, who has had several rough meetings with Eckert in the past five or six years.

Esteppe vs Meeker
The above match is double-billed with the match between Marshall Esteppe of Sturgeon, Mo., and Jerry "Killer" Meeker of Missoula, Montana. This event will see about as evenly matched contestants as any seen here of late. Both are good hard wrestlers.

To decided the top spot on the card the contestants will meet in the ring, toss a coin to see which takes the 90-minute event. Opening the card is the match between George Leopold, St. Joseph, Mo., and Jimmy Sears of Marshall.

Contract to Bring About $125,000

By James Saggus
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5—(AP)—Bud Wilkinson leaves New Orleans today with a $125,000 contract that spirit earned for him and his Oklahoma football team. The contract officially matches Oklahoma against Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl game here New Year's day. That's the Oklahoma team that Wilkinson predicted would lose two of its first three games this year and the Oklahoma that lost seven men to the Oklahoma National Guard when it was activated shortly before the football season opened.

Wilkinson flew to New Orleans yesterday to sign the document which will bring his team an estimated $125,000. Kentucky will get the same amount for its performance.

The 34-year-old coach was proud of his team.

"We have no depth and the boys had to make up for it in spirit," he said. "They came from behind time after time to win."

He said his seniors played with the spirit and eagerness that you usually find only in sophomores and juniors.

"Our squad always had this aggressive 'let's win this one, too, attitude,'" Wilkinson said, "and it brought out a greater endeavor from the sophomores."

CBC Pays Clinton Elks on Thursday

Central Business college will play its second game of the season Thursday night at convention hall against the Clinton Elks. This game will follow a preliminary game between Town and Country Shoes and Otterville. The preliminary game will start at 7 o'clock. The business college in its first start of the season defeated Lake Ozarkers to the tune of 74-31. It is anticipated that the CBC team will at least be as strong this week as it was last week. Two players were not present, Hillard Willy and Bud Thomas, and it is hoped that they will be here for this week's contest.

CBC Lost in 1949

The business college quintet in their game with Clinton last year was defeated 67-46 and they will be out to avenge this loss to the Clinton aggregation. High point man in the last game was Artie Elwell with a total of 18 points followed by Foster McGuire with 15 and Billy Elwell and Neil Kemmeyer with twelve points each.

The plans for the Central Business college tournament of December 14, 15, and 16th are progressing nicely. All teams have been entered and the players rosters have been received from a number of the teams. Among some of the players are: Ben Ireland, Keith Anderson, Dale Boyd and Jim Egbert from the Superior Cleaners of Warrensburg.

On the California roster are Bob Kiel, Warren Minturn and Gene Baker. The California aggregation defeated Alcoa Farms Friday night by three points. The way the teams are shaping up in pre-season games the CBC invitation tournament should give basketball fans in and around Sedalia a good taste of what the local Lions club tourney will be like in January.

Invited to Lions Tourney

As the first and second place teams have been automatically invited to the Lions club tournament and it is anticipated that several of the teams that make a strong showing in this tournament will also be invited to the Lions club tourney.

Game time for Town and Country Shoes and Otterville will be at 7 o'clock and will be immediately followed by the game between the Central Business college basketballers and the Clinton Elks. Officials of this contest will be Rocky Carver and George Thompson.

Deny Dissension On SMU Squad

DALLAS, Dec. 5—(AP)—Reports of dissension on the Southern Methodist university football squad were categorically denied today by the entire squad.

In a written statement drafted by Co-Captain Bobby Collier, the squad said of reports that there had been locker room fights and disagreements in the late stages of the Southwest conference race when SMU lost four of five games after winning its first five: "x x x There have been many rumors since the team started losing, but they are all false and unjust.

"The spirit and co-operation of each player was the same at the end of the season as it was at the beginning. x x x"

The statement, in the form of an open letter to Southern Methodist fans, was given at a dinner for the team last night.

Rundown on Minors Meet

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 5—(AP)—Here's a quick rundown of yesterday's developments at the major league baseball meetings:

George Selkirk, former New York Yankee outfielder, was named manager of the Yanks' Kansas City farm team in the American Association.

Zack Taylor signed to manage the St. Louis Browns for the third straight year.

Jimmy Adair was appointed third-base coach of the Chicago White Sox.

Rollie Hemsley quit as pilot of the Columbus Redbirds of the American Association.

Manager Joe Gordon of Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League said he hoped to have his former teammate, Ken Keltner, play third base for him in 1951. Reliable sources said Dutch Meyer, former Detroit infielder, will be named new manager of the Dallas club of the Texas League.

The Cleveland Indians announced the appointment of Tom Downey as their west coast scout. Ottawa paved the way for taking up the Jersey City franchise in the International League by transferring its own franchise to Cornwall, Ontario, in the Border League.

Presidents of 20 class D leagues met to discuss the 1951 baseball situation.

Ezzard Charles Established As 5-1 Choice Over Barone

By Fritz Howell

CINCINNATI, Dec. 5—(AP)—The odds fellows had heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles a 5-1 choice today to retain his laurels in tonight's 15-round title scrap with rugged Nick Barone of Syracuse.

Overlooking the fact Barone has never been off his feet in 52 professional fights, the betting boys opine "the only thing Charles figures to lose is his moustache."

The Queen City Boxing Commission ordered the champ to shave the hirsute adornment from his upper lip—but it was still there today as the gladiators staged a mock weighing-in ceremony for the photographers.

10,000 To See Bout

About 10,000 of Charles' home town fans are expected to put some $50,000 on the line to watch the Cincinnati Negro's fifth defense of the title in Ohio's first heavyweight championship scrap in almost 20 years.

This is one championship bout in which neither principal gets a guarantee. The payoff will be on the number of dollars they draw at the gate, with Charles getting 42½ per cent, and Barone 17½.

The boys offered a startling contrast at Monday's hand-shaking exercises. Charles long and lithe, towered inches over the chunky Barone who is built along the lines of a fire plug and appears as durable.

Barone Cuts Easily
Barone's manager, Henry Andrews, told the commission that his boy is a bit of a bleeder and asked that the festivities not be stopped should the Syracuse 24-year-old spring a leak from an eye or face cut.

"What if Barone does bleed a little?" Andrews asked. "It's to his credit. Most fighters today are so old they can't bleed. They're mummified."

A slashed eye cost Barone the only kayo on his record, a 1946 loss to Jim Rouse in a scrap stopped by the referee in the sixth.

Miss Palmer To Conference

Is Delegate to Meeting Held on Child Welfare

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Palmer, 901 South Vermont avenue, announce that their granddaughter Germaine Palmer of St. Louis left Friday for Washington, D. C., as one of two high school delegates to the White House conference which opened Sunday in the National armory. President Truman addressed the Mid-Century White House conference on child welfare and legislation today on the theme for 1950, "Children and Youth."

Germaine Palmer

Germaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Palmer, Jr., who were residents of Sedalia before moving to St. Louis. She will be one of 60 delegates selected by Governor Forrest C. Smith representing labor, farmers, science, professions and skills from Missouri.

This is the first time high school students have received a personal invitation from the President to attend these conferences which are held every ten years. The first was called by Theodore Roosevelt in 1909 and from recommendations made then, the first laws were enacted providing for aid to dependent children.

The second conference was called in 1920 by Woodrow Wilson and resulted in the first child labor legislation. Herbert Hoover in 1930 convened the White House conference with the "Children's Charter" as a result.

"The Child in a Democracy" was the theme of the conference invited by President Roosevelt in 1940. Every conference has resulted in some type of child legislation to protect children.

The purpose of the present conference is to determine what must America do to make certain children and youth will mature to be emotionally secure? The delegates will consider this question in two phases, first, fact finding at the state level on conditions relative to health, welfare, recreation and education; second the second the implementation of the needs at the local level.

Miss Palmer, a senior, was selected from the high school students of St. Louis on the basis of her scholarship and extra-curricular achievements in music and editorial work on her high school newspaper. She will spend a week in Washington attending meetings and sight-seeing returning to St. Louis next Sunday.

Legion to Have Christmas Party

The American Legion Post 16 met in regular session Monday night with Commander John Thomas presiding.

Committee reports were given by those in charge of the various committees. Most of the business transacted centered around membership, which was reported to be going along smoothly, and the rentals of the Legion hall.

It was announced a Christmas party will be held at the next regular meeting night. This party will be held following the business meeting. The Legionnaires and members of the Auxiliary will join together to enjoy the Christmas party. Each member is to bring a fifty cent Christmas present to be exchanged.

Following the meeting refreshments were served. Jack Alpert was in charge of arranging for the refreshments.

Lincoln University Band Will Play

The Lincoln university concert band of seventy pieces will give a thirty minute concert from the stage of Liberty park convention hall beginning at 7:00 p. m. on the night of Tuesday, December 12th preceding the 7:30 preliminary basketball game between the Hubbard high school and the Dalton Vocational School of Dalton, Missouri. This band stages a fine performance between the halves of all the home football games and all lovers of good band music will enjoy the music of this fine organization.

Immediately following these two events the Lincoln university Tigers will engage the Shurtleff college (White) basketball team of Alton, Illinois. Lincoln has been annually engaging this college in basketball and track for the past few years and the coach of the Shurtleff college expressed his desire that his team be permitted to play Lincoln in this feature game at Sedalia. Shurtleff is reported to have five team members over six feet tall and should give the Lincoln university Tigers a run for their money.

Remember "Heavy" Williams?

Sedalia's local high school basketball followers and fans will remember "Heavy" Williams, who starred on Lincoln university laboratory high school's team the past four years. Well, "Heavy" is playing in his usual style and is a starter on the Lincoln university five. He will be all set to go against the Shurtleff college five. It isn't often that a high school graduate gets to make the college five in one year's play.

All holders of tickets to the canceled Samuel Houston game will find their tickets honored to the Lincoln university and Shurtleff game.

Ralph "Stub" Dow, coach of the Smith-Cotton Tigers will be in there calling the fouls and penalties in the main go between Lincoln and Shurtleff.

Would Return to Korea Later if Driven Out by Chinese Reds

"no," the source said.

A United Nations withdrawal from Korea was discussed as a last resort only.

Policy for Stabilizing

The policy is, if possible, to stabilize the military situation by getting up a defense line which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces can hold against Chinese Communist pressure—and then to negotiate a settlement with the Peiping authorities if possible, the source said.

Truman and Attlee were said to have agreed to try to avoid taking any action which might touch off a war against Communist China.

They ruled out, for instance, suggestions that U.N. forces in Korea should bomb Manchurian bases.

Information in possession of the British government is that an attack on Manchurian bases by U.N. forces would bring Russia into the fighting, the source said.

The informant said there is reason to believe the Russian air force is in charge of many Manchurian airfields. Russian-maned aircraft are believed to be based in Manchuria in some strength, he added.

The informant said some kind of formula will have to be found whereby the big Western powers can fulfill both their political and military commitments in Korea without getting involved in a war with China.

Whether that will prove possible is a question.

Lacking a clear picture of Red China's immediate objectives in Korea, the British seem to be thinking along these lines:

If war with Red China cannot be avoided, Western efforts should aim at staving it off for as long as possible. They believe Red China with Russian help in air power might sweep Western forces out of Hong Kong, Indo-China, Burma, Formosa and make Japan almost untenable.

That, the informant noted, is looking at things at their very worst.

A more optimistic view is that the Peiping government may show a disposition to negotiate when its forces reach the 38th parallel. Britain would then favor peace talks primarily because the only other immediate course open would be to keep on fighting.

route and one ground escape route—the River George road leading about 50 miles north from the east coast city of Hamburg to Hagaru.

It's an easy road to cut. There never has been any substantial U. N. force west of it. A month ago the Chinese came in once and temporarily isolated two battalions.

Now the Chinese are hitting forward on this sector in tremendous force. They are advancing by sheer weight of numbers—respite a gallant fight by the Marines and Seventh division.

Over on the western front the Eight Army has retreated and badly needs reinforcements.

It would make strategic sense to pull the 10th Corps out by sea and move it in behind the Eight Army on a southern line.

You could move the two ROK divisions out by sea from Iwon or Chongjin. The U. S. Third division could embark from Wonsan.

But the Marines and Seventh division must get down that long lonely road to Hungnam or be evacuated by air. There's only one makeshift airstrip. Perhaps two divisions could be airlifted from it but the odds are against it.

That means unless the situation changes the Marines and Seventh division must claw their way down the Gorge Road. It cannot help but be a bloody, vicious battle if such a withdrawal is necessary.

And other Tenth Corps forces must stay in northeast Korea until that evacuation is possible—or until the situation is restored. So far there is no sign it will be restored in the east.

The necessity of backing up the Marines and Seventh division probably explains why General MacArthur left five divisions in northeast Korea when the western front crumbled.

New Dangers From Erupting Mt. Etna

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Mt. Etna belches smoke and flames today in a new burst of activity which posed new dangers from flowing lava to villages on the volcano's slopes seriously threatened a week ago.

Streams of lava pushed from several scores of holes and blazed across Korea, perhaps at the "waist," and keep the Chinese avalanche from driving them off the peninsula into the sea. The defenders "expect" to turn the trick. To achieve this they have to beat that ugly expendability.

Massed Attacks for Gains

The Chinese Communists successes in Korea have been due largely to massed attacks in which the Reds have advanced through sheer weight of numbers. The Red generals at times have made up for lack of guns by massing manpower. Of course that's a trick as old as war itself, but it strikes a weird chord these days.

And what makes these men "expendable"? Is it their own choice, or is it forced on them?

Well, it probably is a bit of the former and much of the latter. It's true that many Oriental peoples regard death with a stoicism which the West finds hard to understand. A typical example down the mountainside.

Speed of the flow was estimated at about 60 yards an hour.

The villages of Milo and Re-nazzi on the eastern slope and the town of Fornazzi, across from Milo in the Valley of the Lion, were again in the paths of the lava. The stream of lava still was from two to two and a half miles away.

The waters of Paraguay's Parana River once were believed to clear the throat and pruffy the voice.

was afforded during the late war by the suicide squads of Japanese airmen (Kamikaze) who drove their bomb-laden warplanes right into Allied warships.

However, one has to report that the cases of many Chinese Red troops lacks the glamor of such fanatical sacrifice. For their frequently is a forced service. However, one way or another, the Chinese soldier is a brave man.

Chinese Nationalist sources who have been through the war will tell me the Red recruiting system is ruthless. They put the matter like this:

The soldier is forced into the ranks and kept there by threats of harm to his family if he doesn't obey orders.

This threat also is held over the fighting men in massed attacks. Frequently, too, they are driven into action with machineguns. Either they fling themselves on the enemy and thereby gain some sort of chance at survival or they are shot down by their own people from the rear.

Sometimes before an attack Nationalist sources say, the troops are given narcotics, or are sent into action intoxicated. A recent report from Korea told of a fierce attack by drunken Chinese Reds.

But regardless, the Chinese are expendable. And there is an inexhaustible reservoir of manpower in the country's population of some 500,000,000. That's why the U.N. is deeply anxious—and rightly so—to prevent a major Chinese war growing out of the Korean crisis.

Aerial View of Cole Camp

Two covered wagons, drawn by ox teams, made their way along the old Booneville-Springfield road and into the territory that is now Benton county. The year was 1839 and the leader of this small caravan was Dr. Hosea Powers, a professional man and statesman, who was looking for a suitable spot to settle.

It was an early spring day when the Powers' train pushed its way along the small absolute trail, by then turned into a thin ribbon of mud by the persistent spring rains. The trail offered little shelter, for on one side it was bordered by a heavy line of timber and on the other by tall, thick patches of prairie grass.

Late in the afternoon the leader of the train ordered the wagons to halt. Scanning the prairie land that lay before him Powers turned to his party and announced that, "I have at last found the place I have been seeking. The journey is ended."

First House in Cole Camp

It was in the summer of that year that Dr. Powers and his pioneer followers constructed the first house on the site where Cole Camp now stands.

Powers, however, was not the first settler to enter the region. In the fall of 1830 Ezekiel Williams, a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition across the Rocky Mountains in 1804, settled near Cole Camp. Williams was later made Cole Camp's first postmaster, having accepted the appointment on February 26, 1839.

With the increased migration of settlers into the county, V. G. Kemper concluded that the area was now capable of supporting a general store. He erected this store near Dr. Powers' residence in 1846. His business prospered and soon other stores were built to handle the ever increasing number of pioneers who were finding their way into the new village of Cole Camp.

Railroad Construction

With the completion of the S-W and S-W railroad, which linked Sedalia and Warsaw, came a movement of the business section from its initial location, southwest of the present town of Cole Camp, to the narrow gauge tracks over which the train ran.

In 1904 the Rock Island railroad was completed and although the tracks were not laid through the town, a station was located only two miles east of the community at Nay.

Cole Camp was incorporated on March 3, 1897 and Henry Mahnken was elected president of the village board. In March of 1900 Cole Camp was re-incorporated as a fourth class city.

Later a special election made possible the construction of a water system, which was completed in 1910. This system was revised and the new system completed in 1939.

Volunteer Fire Department

Twenty men compose the volunteer fire department. Cole Camp has its own fire house and truck. A city marshal handles the police duties.

The high school and grade school have four buses, which transport the large number of rural students from various parts of the county. There are five churches in Cole Camp, including three Lutheran, a Catholic and a Methodist. Lodges in the town are the American Legion post, with over 150 members, the Masonic lodge, and its affiliate, the Order of the Eastern Star.

The Benton County Guide, published every Friday by Ed Wilkens and M. N. White, is the county's outstanding newspaper. Wilkens has been with the Guide since 1930. In 1938 Wilkens and White consolidated the three newspapers in the county to form the Guide.

Talk of Shoe Factory

The Thomasseti Shoe Company opened a factory in Cole Camp. The plant gave employment for a large number of the town's 1,000 residents.

Another well known product coming out of Cole Camp is the packaged nut meats. Two companies, the Idle Hour Nut Company and the Cole Camp Nut Company, supply a large retail market in the middle west.

C. H. Junge has held the office of mayor for many years and works with the four-man board of aldermen in keeping the town on an active basis. Mr. Junge was mayor during the Cole Camp centennial celebration held in September of 1939 and contributed his services and efforts for the success of the affair.

Many legends have been proffered as to the source of the community's name. One legend claims that it was derived from a member of the Cole family, then living in Cooper county. Mr. Cole was said to have gone through the region with a herd of cattle. As he approached Cole Camp from the southwest, so the story goes, Cole ran into a blizzard and was forced to make camp and wait until the storm had abated. He selected a large overhanging rock as a suitable shelter. According to the legend, Cole went to sleep that night and froze to death.

Another Legend

Many are firmly convinced that this was the source of Cole Camp's name, but still another faction is as certain that the name came from Cole Camp Creek. Older citizens of Cole Camp claim that the original settlement was called Lick Skillet and later re-named Blakely Town. It is still a matter of much speculation as to which story is correct, and each group stands unmoved behind their own statements.

Cole Camp went into an era of rapid growth after its founding in 1839 and the town was allowed to spend 30 years in peaceful progression before the Civil War in 1861 brought this activity to a standstill.

In 1861 word reached the residents of Cole Camp that a Confederate army, allegedly composed of many southern soldiers from the neighboring Hickory county, were marching on Cole Camp. The Home Guard was quickly organized and went out to meet the invaders in an effort to protect the town.

An Ironic Farce

According to the granddaughter of one of the men connected with the battle, the fight was turned from a military engagement into an ironic farce.

The Guard marched to a farm three miles southeast of town where they had intended meeting the Confederate troops. When they arrived they found only the occupants of the farm going about their daily tasks. The men went into a barn on the farm and, according to the granddaughter, proceeded to engage in some friendly drinking.

Several of the officers in charge of the Guards told them that they would be able to hold off the southerners if they would fortify the barn by piling brush around it. The men in the ranks, pleasantly reinforced by the alcohol, jeered at such a suggestion and boasted that they could handle the "rebels" without the aid of a barricade.

Massing For Attack

While this was going on the southerners were massing near the farm for an attack. When the attack finally did come the members of the Home Guard, who had been drinking, were in such an intoxicated condition that they offered no serious threat to the attacking forces of the Confederacy. They swooped down on the unwary imbibers and had it not been for an orderly retreat, which finally turned into a mass rout, many more Union soldiers would have lost their lives.

Residents of Cole Camp were continually plagued by bushwhackers during the years of conflict between the states. One of the most horrible atrocities perpetrated during these raids was the needless slaughter of seven civilians.

Held at Gun Point

Eight men were gathered around the stove in a store, outside the city limits, discussing items of current interest. While they were sitting there a band of bushwhackers entered the building and ordered the men to march outside. Once out of the store they were herded into the center of a ring of bushwhackers and held there at gun point.

One of the victims, who later told the story, said that one man, pulled his gun and fired into the prisoners. When the injured man dropped the leader began to shout, and while singing waved his pistol in the air and pranced around in circles.

After completing four or five circular steps he would aim his revolver and kill another man. He continued this until all eight men

Aerial View of Cole Camp

Two covered wagons, drawn by ox teams, made their way along the old Booneville-Springfield road and into the territory that is now Benton county. The year was 1839 and the leader of this small caravan was Dr. Hosea Powers, a professional man and statesman, who was looking for a suitable spot to settle.

It was an early spring day when the Powers' train pushed its way along the small absolute trail, by then turned into a thin ribbon of mud by the persistent spring rains. The trail offered little shelter, for on one side it was bordered by a heavy line of timber and on the other by tall, thick patches of prairie grass.

Late in the afternoon the leader of the train ordered the wagons to halt. Scanning the prairie land that lay before him Powers turned to his party and announced that, "I have at last found the place I have been seeking. The journey is ended."

The Ghost of Christmas Present showed Scrooge the people of London cheerfully shoveling snow off their roofs. They were happy and full of glee, for it was Christmas morning.

And he showed Scrooge the shops, rich to bursting with the abundance of Christmas.

And then the church bells rang from every steeple, and Scrooge saw the people flocking to church in their best clothes and with their gayest faces.

"TOO PRETTY" PORTRAIT—Dale Kushner, 5, of Chicago, looks at a portrait of herself which now hangs in solitary splendor amid garden tools in her family garage. When the judge denied him the refund of $135, Kushner hung the painting in the garage in disgust.

Russians Ban Austrian Gliders

VIENNA.—(AP)—In December, 1949, the Russians gave permission to glider enthusiasts to take up their sport again. Recently, however, the Soviets banned glider flying in the Russian zone and proposed that the four allies occupying Austria dissolve the glider pilots' club.

The western allies refused, so Soviet zone pilots now do their flying in the American, British and French zones. The reason for the Russian about-face is obscure. American officials said it is possibly designed to limit glider activity until the Russians themselves make a strong bid for control of the sport through well-organized Communist glider groups.

Truck Operators Use Dangerous Roads Over The Nation

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5—(P)—The nation's truck operators are being forced "to do 20th century business with 19th century facilities," Ted V. Rodgers of Scranton, Pa., said last night in calling for highway improvements.

Rodgers, honorary chairman of the Board of the American Trucking Association, spoke at the closing session of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association's annual convention.

He said the nation's highways have some new surfaces but the footings are old, the widths and alignments are dangerous and most of the bridges are not adequate.

It is a necessary part of the nation's defense, he said, to improve the highway system and to set up a "reasonable set of state laws governing the size and weight of motor vehicles."

All major officers of the state association were re-elected. They were: W. A. Schien, Sedalia, president; Lee J. Sloan, St. Louis, vice-president; G. F. Fischer, Washington, treasurer.

W. H. Husmann of St. Louis was elected as the state's vice-president of the American trucking Association.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 4—(P)—U. S. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) advocates use of the atomic bomb in Manchuria if Russia and Red China refuse to stop the Korean war.

One Dead, 8 Injured In A Collision

CARTHAGE, Mo., Dec. 5—(P)—One man was killed and eight persons were injured Monday in a two-car collision on U. S. highway 71 near Carthage.

Killed was Alvin T. Windle, 56. Five passengers in his car were hurt.

Housework Not A Chore For This Lady Now

Mrs. Laura Norris, 1325 A South 6th St., St. Louis, Mo., says doing the family washing and housework is no longer a chore. She says she can do her work in a breeze now. She thanks wonderful HADACOL for her feeling of well being. She had deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mrs. Norris' exact statement "It was such a long time since I was feeling 'OK.' Couldn't sleep either — just roll and toss all night. I couldn't hardly do my housework—and I was always cross and irritable. One day I heard about how other folks were being helped by HADACOL. I tried HADACOL, and after the 2nd bottle I began to feel better. I sleep like a top—in fact, I feel wonderful, thanks to marvelous HADACOL."

Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle costs only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There is only the one true and genuine HADACOL which everyone is taking about. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corp., Lafayette, La.

had been shot. The group then left, believing all eight were dead. One man, however, survived the massacre and was the one who later related the details of the sadistic attack to the residents.

Women Helped

Another incident that is recalled deals with the influence the women of the times had on men. From an analysis of the incident it appeared the women of Civil War times could inspire fear and respect in even the hardest of men.

The bushwhackers were traveling through the country one day stealing money and livestock. One farmer, when he heard that the group was headed toward his home, went into the house and hid in a specially constructed opening in the floor. His wife placed a sheepskin rug over the hole and her rocking chair on top of the rug. The men entered the house and demanded money. The woman ignored them and rocked in her chair. They told her that since she refused to give money they wanted her husband. The woman refused to surrender him and remained in her chair. Finally, somewhat humiliated by the fact that they bowed to the force of a woman, the group admitted that they wanted neither money nor her husband, but that the real purpose of their visit was to take away the horses. She told them the horses were in the field and could be caught only by her husband.

Disgusted at themselves and their showing in the face of such a woman the bushwhackers stalked out of the house and to the home of a nearby farmer where they hanged him and stole his horses.

Fourteen Killed As Buses Collide

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 5—(P)—Fourteen persons were killed and more than 50 injured in a collision of two buses on a highway near here Sunday night.

The second vehicle was driven by Hallet Heath, 45, of Joplin. He and his two sons were injured.

Belief Mayor Shot Accidentally

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Dec. 5—(P)—A former Pawhuska mayor was found shot to death in the bedroom of his home here Sunday.

Assistant Osage county coroner Jess Werten, Jr., ruled Charles S. MacDonald, 70, was killed accidentally. A .32 caliber pistol lay on the floor nearby.

The prominent attorney received his law degree from the University of Kansas in 1899 and went to Pawnee, Okla., four years later.

In 1906 he moved to Pawhuska and became its first city attorney. MacDonald's law activities also included a term as president of the Osage County Bar Association.

In one of his most celebrated cases, his law firm won an income tax rebate or more than a million dollars for Osage Indian tribes.

MacDonald is survived by his widow, Anna, a son and daughter. Funeral services are scheduled here today.

All registered Labrador retrievers today are direct descendants of dogs from the kennels of the 2nd and 3rd Earls of Malmesbury.
